

ABSTRACT

A computer-implemented method for generating electronic documents, including the steps of: receiving data from at least one application program, dividing the data into text data and graphics data, and generating at least one first file for storing at least a portion of the text data or graphics data, thereby creating an electronic document.

PHI825139.1

TECHNICAL FIELD